Yom Kippur White Out!

WE ARE ……………………………………… TBE!

Yom Kippur is five months’ away, and we have an exciting plan to promote congregational unity and spirituality. On that day, we refrain from eating and drinking; we rise above our physical bodily needs. We focus on returning to our spiritual and pure essence. Wearing white on Yom Kippur represents atonement and purity. It makes us like angels, becoming lighter, more transparent. In Isaiah 1:18: The Lord says: “Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow.” Wearing white also harkens back to the biblical High Priest, who dressed in white linen on Yom Kippur. When we are buried, it is in white garments; wearing such on Yom Kippur reminds us of our mortality. It gives us more motivation to repent. Having our community all in white on Yom Kippur will symbolize our unity and strength as a congregation.

To that end, we have five months to coordinate our wardrobes so that we wear white on Yom Kippur. Many of you already have such items in your possession, so this may be easy. For both men and women, there is a white robe available through the Gift Shop for purchase, called a “Kittel.” Order it soon, so that you will have it in time for September! If it is not something you are interested in wearing, try to wear a white shirt or blouse. Wearing white on Rosh Hashanah is also a great idea, but our focus this year is on Yom Kippur. When the Rabbi looks out at the congregation during Kol Nidre, hopefully he will see a Sea of White!

Like a Penn State White-Out Game,

WE ARE ……………………………………… TBE!

“Days” of Our Lives
Shari Spark, Ritual and Service Coordinator

It’s April…it’s Nissan…Passover is around the corner. With the approach of Pesach, the Jewish calendar gets crowded; crowded with the “Days”.

Pesach marks a week of celebrating the epic story of our people’s freedom from slavery. We are commanded to teach our children the story, as if all of us were there that night of the Exodus. The weeklong holiday, with its sedarim and mitzvah to remember and retell, kicks off a month’s worth of remembrance and retelling.

One week after the end of Pesach is the solemn and moving day of Yom HaShoah v’HaG’vurah, Holocaust and Martyrs Remebrance Day. In 1959, the Israeli government established this day, corresponding to the 27th of Nissan. This date holds special meaning: The anniversary of the Warsaw Ghetto uprising.

Looking forward another week, now in the month of Iyyar, and we remember the fallen soldiers and victims of terror in Israel. This day, Yom HaZikaron, is Israeli Memorial Day. In contrast to our own American Memorial Day, Yom HaZikaron is the saddest of Israeli commemorations. There is not one family with some connection to the tragedy of terror and war; these losses are felt deeply with family visits to graves, ceremonies, and singing of sad songs.

The very next day the mood changes 180 degrees. The 4th of Iyyar is Yom Ha’Atzmaut, Israel’s Independence Day. Happiness overflows! Jokingly referred to as “Yom Mangal”, BBQ day, Israelis celebrate with cookouts, beach outings, fireworks, and a general atmosphere of joy and national pride.

Finally, starting the second night of Pesach, we begin counting the days of the Omer. For 7 weeks, we count as the Torah commands us. Whether we recognize the counting of planting and harvesting of the barley crop, or from the Exodus of Egypt until receiving the Torah at Sinai (Pesach up to Shavuot), these 49 days give us the opportunity to grow spiritually and knowledgeable about Judaism.

“Pesach and Beyond!” should be the battle cry for counting the Omer. Every year, Jewish Family Education proudly produces an interactive Omer calendar. This year’s theme is “Dr Jew-Little”: Animals in Jewish literature, law and lore. Enjoy a new fact or bit of wisdom each day of the Omer; our students’ artwork is always inspiring and can be found on the interactive calendar, on the “Count the Omer with TBE” Facebook page, or with daily email reminders.

So many days, so many special ways to remember and pass on our Jewish heritage this time of the year!

Chag Pesach Sameach v’Kasher! May you have a happy, healthy and kosher Pesach!

See you at the Shop!
Andy & Jill
We enjoyed seeing so many of you at the Hamantaschen & Her Story event last month. Members baked over 300 hamantaschen for their families and for the Shabbat Angels program. Afterwards, our guest speaker, Dr. Jodi Eichler-Levine spoke about Purim, Play, and Power: Women and the Purim Story. We reflected on how different approaches to the Purim story tell us about the wide variety of ways to think about Jewish women’s roles. Thank you to all those who helped with this wonderful program – especially Carol Bernhard for organizing the evening and perfecting the delicious hamantaschen recipe.

Join us on Thursday, April 2nd for our next Sisterhood meeting. Check your email for details. When you stop in, please be sure to check out our giftshop. We carry an assortment of items to enhance your Passover table or to bring as hostess gifts. (Pst! There are even some Passover items on sale!) And remember to stock up on Giant gift cards before you do your food shopping - Sisterhood earns money with your purchase of the gift cards.

Don’t forget to order your spring flowers by April 16th. Thank you to Phyllis Kaufman for organizing our spring plant sale. Coupons to pick up your flowers at the Lehigh Home and Garden store will be available on April 27th. See the attached flyer in the bulletin for an order form and details.

Looking ahead to May, please mark your calendars for Mah Jongg Club on Monday, May 11th and save the date for our annual Donor Dinner taking place on Wednesday, May 20th. Our incredible co-chairs, Jeannie Miller and Margie Strauss, have a very special evening planned. Check your mailboxes for your invitation.

Finally, next year’s calendar is already being planned. We encourage all members to consider joining a committee to help with programming, fundraisers, cooking, or to just be “on call” for once and done projects. This is a great time to become involved – or even more involved - and help Sisterhood support Temple Beth El. Please contact one of us to learn more or let us know where you would like to be involved.

With Purim over my thoughts immediately turn to the next big holiday…. Passover! If you are like me, you find the whole idea of Passover daunting. Whatever your family traditions, changing dishes, not changing dishes, cleaning the whole house or cleaning the kitchen, it all adds up to a lot of work! And also weighing on my mind is the two night Seder-extravaganza. Every year I have high hopes of making my seder something that will be remembered forever, but usually it ends up being the same traditional seder. This year, I resolved to make my family seder more child friendly.

Today I used my favorite tool in my toolbox: Google. I began to google: ways to engage kids in a seder, how to have a seder with children, Passover for kids. There are so many ideas out there, but how to decipher which ones will be good for my family? I certainly can’t try all at once! Which one will work and which one won’t, but the only way to know is to try.

Here are some nifty ideas I found, and maybe they can help you as well!

10 Plague Charades- mommypoppins.com

Give out a small piece of candy for asking questions, for giving answers during the seder.

Acting out dancing the crossing of the sea by the Israelites.

Children walking around with a pitcher of water for adults to participate in washing their hands during the seder.

And of course, there’s always the hunt for the afikomen!

Feel free to share your ideas on the Temple Beth El Facebook page!
In the weeks approaching Pesach, the school classrooms are filled with young voices singing Mah Nishtana and practicing for their big debut at the seder. It is a special milestone when your child is old enough to ask the four questions. As they learn to sing the Hebrew, they also learn the meaning and discover that they are actually asking one big question followed by four statements. Why is the night different from all other nights? On all other nights we don’t dip once, but on this night we dip twice. On all other nights we eat hamatz and matza, but on this night, only matza. On all other nights we eat all kinds of herbs, but on this night only bitter herbs (maror). On all other nights we sit straight or recline at the table but on this night we recline. These four statements expound on the first question. As teachers and parents, we know that many statements are really questions. When a child says “I’m bored” to a teacher at break time, sometimes it is a way of asking “Can you help me be included in freetime play?” When a student says “My family does not do that,” it is often a way to question “How is this relevant to me?” And “I can’t.” is very often “Can you show me a different way to learn?” When done with care, there will be much to wonder about during the Pesach seder. Whether your children’s questions are phrased as statements, questions, silence, or seeming disinterest, answer them all as best you can. Let them know you hear them. In this way, you will fulfill the commandment of telling our story to the next generation.
